Camera © Canadian War Museum

Camera

Many Canadians used small, affordable and portable cameras such as this to record their wartime experiences. They took photographs of family and friends, or of significant events or places. Unlike today's digital cameras, wartime cameras used film that had to be developed in labs and printed before the pictures could be seen.

Original